A SURPRISING DECISION.

ONE OF IMPORTANCE TO CHILDREN BORN IN SLAVERY.

Even New the Children of Married Slaves Are Illegitimate, and Cannot Inherit Property from the Father-Congressmen Mason to Come to the Besone.

Curcago, May 10.-Judge Tuley has rendered a preliminary decision in a contested will case that is of considerable importance to all children born in slavery and to many of the descendants of such children. He, in fact, pronounces such children illegitimate, and holds that they cannot inherit property from the father. The will contested is that of Mrs. Elizabeth Bunch, and the story is as stables of Richard Conking, who raised the follows:

> James Washington, a sleve of Gen. Thomas Marshall, of Mason county, Kentucky, married a slave named Liza and from their union sprang two children, Lim and Elizabeth. In 1832 James escaped, going to Huron, O., and there he made arrangements to any his wife and two children from their master. But while he was paying for them his wife and child Line died, and their master, in consideration of the sum already paid, gave him Elizabeth. Elizabeth, however, soon left him, and, after wandering over Ohio and Indiana, came to Chicago, where she married in 1844. Her husband and children died, and in 1886 she, too, passed away, leaving property by will, it is claimed, to one Betty Kilvery, a white girl who had been her companion for some

But it seems that James Washington after the death of his wife Liza, married again and had several children. The eldest of these, a daughter, married William H. M. Bond and had three children. These three children stepped in and contested the will, claiming it to be a forgery and that they were the legal beirs of Elizabeth Bunch. But Judge Suley decided that Elizabeth Bunch was an illegitimate child and could have no heirs but those of her own body. The ground of the decision is that slaves being chattels no legal marriage was possible any more than real estate can marry real estata. This decision, which was made on a motion for a rehearing, was a surprise to both sides, The case will be appealed, however, and then the special point involved will be fully discnased. It is claimed by Mr. Fish, who represents the Bonds, that whatever may have been the status of a slave marriage prior to the war, the effect of the emancipation proclamation and the constitutional amendments as to restore to the slaves all those rights or which they had previously been deprived. When they became free all the rights of free men attached to them retroactively, so that the children born to them in slavery became legitimate.

It is stated that the matter has been brought to Congressman Mason's attention, and that he will introduce a hill in the house declaring that the intent and effect of the emancipation proclamation and the constitational amendments were to validate all slave marriages and legitimize the children

NEWCASTLE, Ind., May 10 .- At Locantie ville, a small village ten miles northeast of here, about 5:30 o'clock, while Marshal man and other the platform, awaiting the westbound passenger train, some unknown miscreant stenned around the corner of the depot and fired both barrels of a shotgun, heavily charged with slugs, bullets, buckshot and small shot, into the crowd and disappeared

Alonzo Cook, Mrs. Dr. Franks and others of the bystanders were also injured, Cook's wounds are serious but not necessarily fatal, being mostly about the breast and head. Mrs. Franks received a painful flesh wound in the arm. No clew to the guilty party has been discovered, but every effort will be made to apprehend him, as the entire community is up in arms over the dastardly outrage. Marshal Wrightsman, ever since his election, has been a terror to the lawless element on account of his vigorous manner of preserving the peace, and repeated threats have been made that he would be mardered. He

THE METHODISTS

Proceedings of the Conference Now Holding in New York. NEW YORK, May 10.—Bishop W. F. Mallalieu presided at the opening of the Methodist Episcopal conference in the Metropolitan opera house, this morning. The report of the commission appointed four years ago to devise plans regarding the admission of lay delegates and to modify the rules that then existed was submitted and made the order of the day for next Wednesday.

Rev. Dr. L. A. Belt, of California, moved that one delegate from each conference district and two delegates at large be appointed who shall be empowered to lay out the boundaries of each conference district. An amendment was offered making the action of the committee permanent, motion with amendment was adopted Committees were next appointed to consider the temperance question and liquor traffic.

W. H. Wilder, of the Illinois conference, presented resolutions that the question of the eligibility of women as lay delegates, be submitted to a vote of the members of the church, not under twenty-one yearge of age during the months of October and Novembar, 1890, on any day except the Sabbath. the time to be determined by the preacher in charge of any place of worship of the Methodist Episcopal church, on at least twenty days' notice. RAILWAY CONDUCTORS

At Toronto Condemn the Recent Strike on the Burlington.

TORONTO, May 10.-Grand Chief Conductor Wheaton, in his address to the twentieth grand division of the Order of Railway Conductors of America, condemned the recent strike on the Burlington railway. He uses the following language:

"The Order of Railway Conductors do not countenance the strike because they believe it wrong in principle. While they consider that every man has the right to leave the service of his employer at pleasure they deny the right of any man to manage his employer's business for him.

"The Order of Railway Conductors are opposed to all combinations that have for their object the compelling of individuals to submit to proposed contracts which they have no voice in making. One strike happening within the year has taken out of the city something over $3,000,000 that would have been paid to its employes. Who can compute this injury done to the working people of the country? The aggressive acts of organized labor are having the effect in all countries of bring down upon their heads restrictory legislation, which curtails their privileges, and if not discontinued we may predict that in the near future they will be surrounded by legislation that will make them in a measure slaves,"

ADAMS COUNTY BURGLARS. Determined Men at Winchester, Ohio,

Seeking Their Scalps. WINGHESTER, O., May 10.-A posse of determined men are now scouring the hills in search of a band of burglars who have infested this county for the past year. The sheriff of the county mid yesterday that there had been seventy-one burglaries in that time in the county and mostly in the vicinity of Jefferson township. The stealings of the band aggregate at least $10,000. Many people think the notorious Knights of the Switch, who are numerous in this county, are the offenders. Several people known to have money and who have disappeared within the past few months are bel lieved to have been robbed and murdered by The posse propose to ride until they locate the outlaws, when, well-appointed lyncaing will undoubtedly occur.

ATLANTA, Ga., May 10.-The state temperance convention before adjourning passed resolutions to make a general prohibition contest in the elections for the legislature this fall. DOM PEDRO'S ILLNESS

CREATES ANXIETY AMONG THE ROY-ALTY OF EUROPE.

Monse Rule Measures Broken by the Torics and the Pope-The Situation Critical According to European Military London.

Foreign News By Cable. LONDON, May 10.- The serious and possibly fatal illness of Dom Padro, second emperer of Brazil, is exciting a great deal of anxiety and compassion among the crowned beads of Europe, with many of whom the venerable and emmently practical monarch to allied by ties of consangenuity or the bonds of matrimony. Although the reports of the condition of the Brazilian sovereign are not such as to excite general alarm, it is known that his physicians have communicated to Lisben. London and Rio Janeiro information dense ing little confidence in their ability to give assurance that the imperial patient will ever return to his throne, and to those in possession of these advices the intelligence imparts feelings of profound sorrow. Dom Pedro has never carned the reput tion of greatness, but he has for many years been known as a wise, just, generous and and conservative monarch, and as such rulers are remarkably scarce and their prospective successors infinitely less numerous the death of the South American emperer would be everywhere regarded as an irreparable calamity. Home Bule Broken.

LONDON, May 10.—There is no disguishing the fact that the Gladstonian Liberal party has been irretrievably broken upon his Home Rule measure for Ireland. The old man had made an heroic effort of late to sustain the movement on which his ministry was defeated. They are not the English Liberals to whom the defeat is due, but the Irish themselves, who have not been able to maderate their demands and confine them within reasonable limit. The demand of the latter went so far an absolute separation and independence forcing on Gladstone too radical a program. This alarmed many of their English supporters when it was emphasized by the plan of campaign. From the moment of its inauguration the home government, which Gladstone was in a fair way of winning for the Irish, was lost. The papal rescript is not its death blow, but rather an announcement that it is dead. The plan of campaign did not meet the approval of Mr. Parnell, who at the banquet given to him at the Kighty club, said: "I approach the subject of the papel rescript most unwillingly, because I de met think it my business as a Protestant to vindicate the freedom of Catholics. I am convinced, however, that such Catholics as know their political duty would not suffer any one, howsoever influential, to swerve them from their course, which it seemed to them to be to their best interests to pursue.

"I did not approve the plan of compaign; I was ill when it was instituted. I weak have advised against it as serving as a pretext for the Tories to further coarcion. Fighting Russian Intrigue.

SOFIA, May 10.—The Bulgarian government has removed Mgr. Clement, metropolitan of the Greek church of Sofia, in consequence of his hostility to Prince Ferdinand. Russian agents for some time have been active among the Bulgarian clergy. Over a month ago it became apparent that the head of the Bulgarian priesthood had been won over, when it was formally intimated that the czar would treat with either Mgr. Clement or M. Stambuloff, the Bulgarian premier, regarding Bulgarian affairs. Some of the priests had been corrupted and one made an effort to raise an insurrection, which was suppressed, and he fled into Servia. The priests are the most difficults element that Ferdinand has to contend with, while the schoolmasters, who in each village have become to be quite as influential as the priests, are anti-Russian and loyal.

England and Russia LONDON, May 10.-Russia has been exremely desirous that the Liberals of England should either supplant Lord Salisbury or prove strong enough to hamper his government. Now that he is secure, the press of St. Petersburg say he will place barriers in the way of Russia's eastern policy. They say that it should be Russia's aim to divert England's attention from eastern affairs by a diversion in Central Asia. Lord Salisbury may be assumed to be quite familiar with the game Russia is now playing an the Ball. ans, since he was one of England's plenipo tentiaries who took part in the diplomacy preceding the Russo-Turkish war.

England Alarmed. LONDON, May 10.—The war estimates have drawn from the Duke of Cambridge, commander and chief of the army, from Gen. STREIGHTS RAID.

▲ Federal Brigade Rode Into Northern Georgia.

BUT RODE NOT BACK AGAIN

Twas a Quarter of a Century Ago Come This May Day.

Onl. Abel D. Streight, of Indiana-A Brave Man, but Fate Was Against Him-Portraits of Generals-A Plucky Confederate Girl Guided Forrest's Cavalry to a Ford. Which They Crossed After Streight Had Burned a Bridge Behind Him.

In approaching the subject of Col. Breight's raid in northern Georgia in 1863, the is profoundly impressed that there is such a thing as fate, or luck, in the destinies of men.

Grierson's raid in Mississippi was undertaken about the same time Col. Streight bean his trip to northern Alabama and Geor-Both men had the sanction of their respective commanders in the tasks before Gen Rosecrans, indeed, commander the Army of the Cumberland at that time, himself planned Streight's expedition. Both were expected to forage on the country through which they passed. Very different were the closing scenes in the two dramas.

His expedition ended h disaster Himself and his officers were sent to Richmond, Va., to Libby prison, After making one of the most remarkable prison escapes on record in any time, a year hter Streight rejoined his command with the Army of the Cumberland. The failure to supply Rosecrans' army with proper cavalry horses was undoubtedly the chief cause of Straight's failure on the raid into Georgia. He was sent out with troops on foot, and was expected to capture horses enough from the Confederacy to mount his whole force. This he only partly succeeded in doing, hence the failure of his Col. Streight was an Indiana man, living in Indianapolis at the Lightney of the war. At the first call in the north for three years' men, he formed a regiment of Indianians and early went to the seat of war. His regiment was the Fifty-first Indiana. He took part in all the campaigning under Buell in Kentucky and Tennessee during the first part of the war. He was noted for his bravery, ability, and fine soldierly character. Streight was at Nashville early in 1863. In connection with his raid appears another name invested for his countrainen with a pathetic interest -- the name of James A. Garfield. "James A. Garfield, bradier general and chief of staff," signed the order from Rosecrans directing Streight's course. The "You have been assigned to the command of an independent provisional brigad, for temporary purposes. * * * You will with all reasonable dispatch push on to western Georgia and cut the railroads which supply the Confederate army by way of Chattanonga. To accomplish this is the chief object of your expetition, and you must not allow collateral or incidental schemes, even though premising great results, to delay you so as to endanger your return." In lat r order Garfield tells Streight: "If you dressyour soldiers in the costume of the enemy they will be liable to be treated as spies: You should not do this without the concent of the men, after they ha e been fully advised of the possible consequences." One Illinois and part of two Ohio regiments, his own Fifty-first Indiana, in all 1,900 men, were placed under Streight's orders. "You will draw your supplies and keep your command well mounted from the country through which you pass," said the first order to Streight. To capture horses enough to mount 1 800 infantry, and then go with them and destroy two railroads, appears in the light of twenty-five years after like cutting out considerable work for Col. Screight, his and took possession of it, routing the Confederate force there.

Rosecrans' order through "Garfield, chief of staff," had said to Streight: "After having marched long enough with Gen Dodge to create a general impression that you are part of his command, you will push to the southward."

At Tuscumbia, accordingly, the two commands separated. Dodge went southward, swept around through northern Alabama and returned to his headquarters at Corinth. His part of the raid had been successful.

Streight turned his eye eastward to Georgia. Once more, if the kindly reader will turn to his map of the southern states, he will rote the important lines of railway that traverse Georgia and lead to Chattanooga, Tenn. Over these roads went the supplies that maintained the Confederate army in its stronghold at Chattanooga, which Rosecrans was trying to reduce.

Had Streight's raid been successful, it would have been followed with important cousequences,

But it was not to be. Hardly had Streight left Tuscumbia when the avenger was on his track. The avenger was the combined Confederate cavalry forces of Col. Roddey and Gen. N. B. Forrest. They were 4,000 strong, well and powerfully mounted. The cream of the horseflesh of that region had been skinnined for their armies, leaving worthless animals and mules for Streight. His mount consisted almost wholly of mules. Ere many hours Forrest and Roddey, on their fleet horses, were up with the Federal rear. Then began a fight which lasted four

Col. P. D. Roddey had been stationed four miles from Tascumbia, Ala., with 1,400 cavalry. He was a brave and skillful commander, and kept the region alive with trusty scouts, who informed him of every one of the Federal movements as soon as n was made. Thus he found out immediately that Dodge had left Streight, and that Streight was proceeding eastward and southward toward Georgia.

Roddey sent a courier to Forrest, some distance away, with the information. Forrest at once caught the gravity of the situation, and hastened with all dispatch to frustrate the Federal movement. He rode night and day to overtake Streight. This was one of the most important and successful of Forrest's campaigns. One day his troops were quite worn out with hard riding and loss of sleep. It seemed impossible to urge them forward further. They were resting in

All at once a company of southern ladies came in visiting the camp. Friends and relatives of some of them had been captured by Streight. The ladies went and wailed, and urged the soldiers to recenture their lost ones. The juded Confederates, roused up by the sight, were inspired to new effort, and swore to do so. The interview with the ladies sent them into the saddle, galloping onward again.

MARY JANES LETTER.

IT TREATS OF TOPICS UPPERMOST IN WASHINGTON.

A Woman's Idea of the State of Affairs at the National Capital, Spiced Here and There with Pieces of Appropriate

[Special Correspondence.]

WARHINGTON, May 3 .- "Dickey," said I, this morning, as I sat down to write. "will you suggest, on this beautiful May day, an appropriate stanza as an opening ode, so to speak, for my letter from the capital?"

"Well," said she, "what's the matter with Tm going to be Queen of the May, Mother, I'm going to be Queen of the Mayr

"But I'm not," said I; "I've got a sore throat now, clear down to the end of my toes, and I'm not seeking funeral honors. "Hows this one, then?" and she caroled

In the spring a fuller crimson Comes upon the M. C.'s nose; In the spring the Flat malaria Strifts around the town and crows.

"It's libelous," said I.

"The greater the truth the grea"-"There, that will do," I interrupted her; "I guess I can furnish my own poetry," and I proceeded to write while she resumed her reading.

But Dickey was not so far wrong in her rhyme-of course, I refer to the spring malaria, and not to the nose of the member of congress, for, like death, that hath all seasons for its own.

Outwardly, Washington is fair to look upon just now, with its budding trees and blooming flowers-an open volume of a botanical work illustrated in colors-but the spring time has lacked the ethereal mildness of tradition and the roses and the lilies are not occupying the attention of the people to as great an extent as quinine and liver pads. I noticed one druggist advertising three dezen one grain quinine capsules for ten cents, and 4374 grains in bulk for sixty-nine cents. With quinine at that price, even the poorest can have the "chills," but I am of the opinion that most of us would prefer high priced quinine and less "chills."

I was out making some calls the other day The first place I stopped this conversation occurred:

"How do you do?" said I.

"Oh," was the reply, "I'm not very well. I have a cold and sore throat, and everybody in the house has. I think colds are catching this spring '

Then we talked about our ailments awhile, and I went on to another place. "How do you do?" said I.

"Oh. I'm not very well. I have a cold and a sore throat, and everybody in the house has. I think colds are catching this spring."

weren't catching, and went home to get a disinfectant, and have had a cold and sore throat ever since.

Of course, the "Potomac flats" and "this dreadful Washington climate" receive the censure, but I have been talking with a few doctors, and they are complaining because business is poor, and one, I know has given up his house and gone to boarding, because of "hard times."

In my private opinion the whole difficulty is the unusually cold spring, and this is attributed to Gen. Greely, our weather chief, who was unsuccessful in finding the North Pole where it was supposed to be, and is trying to graft a North Pole of his own raising onto the national capital.

"What did you want to sav all that for?" asked Dickey, when I read to her what I had written. "You'll knock the capital boom clear out."

"No I won t." said I. "I won't hurt it a particle Washington is so sweet and clean, so beautiful in her metropolitan forests, so fragrant in her flowering parks and squares, so restful in her quiet, so fair beneath her soft blue skies, that if there were no aches nor pains her people would lose their hope of a more glorious hereafter in the doubt that the existence of such a place were possible."

"Oh!" said she, incredulously, and I took up my pen again. I saw a pretty sight in the house of representatives, or rather a brace of them, one day last week. It was a dull, dreary afternoon with nothing of interest going on, except a long, prosy speech by somebody nobody cared to listen to, on some subject nobody wanted to know anything about, and the members were enjoying themselves in their own way. on the Democratic side sat Representative Oates, of Alabama, known since the "late lamented" Dead Lock as the king of the filibusters, the man who, like Leonidas of old, held the pass against everwhelming numbers, and who after six days and two nights of battle made conditions with the creat equivalent to a victory and possibly established a preredent that the minority rules. The boy would heave and sit on the rope, and then the sprowd statesman would case his hold at I the boy would come down with a dull thud and two or three times a back somersault, only to come up smaling again, as every congressman along the sisle hughed at his downfull Pretty soon the fun became contagins, and the entire balness f that section of the house centered or the boy with the rope, and every tody was grabbing at it. Tom Reed, the good humored Maine statesman, was especially active, and as the boy would chase up and down, dragging the rope over Reed's statuesque No. 14 would come down on it and bring the kid up with a ferk, and then he would counter and come back, tangling the line in all the legs in the alsle, and having only that kind of fun a boy can have when he has full swing and the spanking power is not available. The sport continued for quite a while, and, although it may have been rather undignified for national legislators on duty, it certainly did not detract from their popularity among the highly amused spectators in the gallery.

"And a little child shall lead them."

Horsebacking is the favorite sportthe craze, I may so speak-of Washington at present, and fox hunts and paper hunts and drag hunts are the highest form of social excitement. Every young woman in town, almost, has a riding habit, whether she has a horse or not, and they are very popular, for there's nothing so becomes a pretty figure as a snug riding habit, and the girls all know it.

The ordinary riding is quite safe, even to the amateurs, but a hunt always results in a harvest of hurts, and a girl that can't show several black and blue spots, have an ankle twisted out of joint, a stiff neck from a tumble, or an arm in a sling, is considered very tame indeed. Among the men scars are a glory, too, and Secretary Whitney was trotting around on crutches at a very recent date. The swell paper hunts are quite the thing, you know, and the government is always well represented, but I have it from good authority that President Cleveland considers such time wasted, and looks with positive distaste upon the sight of his high subordinates risking life and limb in a mad chase for a scrap of paper

I was talking to one of these fair equestriennes yesterday.

"I am invited to a german to-night," she said, "and I'm not going."

"Why not?" said I, surprised. "Too tired and sore."

"But you can walk through the figures." I suggested.

"No, I can't. No german for me. I took my first horseback ride this morning and I can only walk 'spanish' now." Not being up in fashionable slang, I didn't know just what she meant, but she must have meant a good deal, for she laughed as one does who has said a very

It is a boast that the citizen of no other country can make, that in the churches, at the concert or the lecture, the employe and the employer, the housewife and the housemaid, cannot be singled out by the apparel worn. The protection or destruction of domestic in dustries concerns especially the working men of America. Would you shun the products of a mill on one side of a river because its owner paid 5 per cent less than current wages, and patronize an establishment directly across the river where wagns were 50 per cent less than in the beycotted mill? The demoralizing competition of unorganized labor at home is insignificant when measured by the illeffect of open competition with the prod ucts of scant clad, ill fed foreign labor In your praiseworthy desire to possess your own homes, you may have incurred an indebtedness Would you by a stroke of law double the amount? You accoun plish the same result by favoring free foreign trade, which will shrink your earnings one half in a twelvemonth, but which will not shrink the mortgages on your homes If by a certain law you were deprived of work and turned from your homes, and your employers were reduced to bankruptcy, would you divide your remaining crust with the theorisis who made that law? Be not deceived The free foreign traders are playing with your destinies as reckiessly as boys play with footballs. Under the pretext of reducing surplus revenue they are strain ing every nerve to degrade our labor sys tem to the European level, and unless vigorous protests are hurled into Wash ington by laboring men from every indus trial center the effort will be successful Put no couldence in those who tell you that neither party desires industrial legislation. A VIVID PICTURE OF THE PASI,

When Colored Mon Were Melused Common Charity and Were Briven

From the City. "And he beheld them and said, What is this that is written. Testone that the builders rejected, the same is become the head of the corner."— Luke xx:17.

Mr. Editor:- I am not about to oreach a sermon, I only want to exhume from the depths of the historic past a scrap of history which is of a kind that does not repeat itself. I am moved, as members of the Society of Friends say, to this because of what occurred on our streets on Friday evening, the 27th ult., on the return of our esteemed fellow citizen, Robert A. Pinn, esq., from the Grand Army encampment at Toledo.

I am the more inclined to refer to it in yiew of the fact that with one or two others who yet live in this city, I lived here when a black man could not have the protection of the law. In 1837 the anti-slavery sentiment had obtained a foot-hold in this city, then a village of about fifteen hundred inhabitants. The black laws of Ohio which were passed in 1804 were sought to be enforced Those enactments, atrocious and inhuman as they were, had friends who insisted that they were enacted for a wise purpose, and that they had served to keep out a worthless population, and that if society was to exist pure the "nigger" must go. Their first step was to attempt to drive out the very black barber to whom they were indebted for his tonsorial labors on their own faces. He was a quiet well-disposed colored man, long since deceased, known as Jim Thompson; was from Brooke county, Virginia, now West Virginia, and as long as he lived here, was a model of good behavior.

The course taken by the pro-slavery Democracy led by the member of the legislature elected that year, 1837, was exceedingly severe and cruel. Notice was served on Jim to leave lest he should become a township charge. Jim did not choose to go; threats of violence were made but were not at that time enforced or attempted to be.

The law of 1804 prohibited a man of mixed blood, African of course, from testifying in a case where a white man or the State was a party, and also intended, without success, to prevent colored people from obtaining a settlement in the State, and no overseer of the poor was allowed to furnish temporary relief. Years later when a poor colored man was found suffering for help he was sent by a pro-slavery Whig, who afterwards committed suicide, to the house of Rev. Geo W. Warner, then the stated supply of the Presbyterian church in this city. In 1837 or 1838 as Mr. Folger, stated it, wh has some written memoranda on the subject, an inoffensive Quaker by the nat e of Joseph A. Dugdale, came here and wanted to deliver an anti-slavery lecture in the "Lang Room" in Blogan & Harris's block now owned by Hon. Geo. Harsh At that time Perry township had a drunken justice of the peace, a Democrat, and a drunken constable, who was a Whig, and they as guardians not only of the public peace but of the safety of the country, and to preserve the peace between the North and South, concluded that Joseph should not speak, and he did not. The drunkenness feature has been so often represented since by the same grade of officials that it has ceased to attract attention. In that respect history does repeat itself. The contents of the tar kettle and feather bag were frequently threatened, but your correspondent is not aware of their being used as against abelitionists. Meanwhile abolition sentiments increased in the community. The old Stark County Anti-Slavery Society was organized, and when a true history of Stark county is written and Mr. Folger can be induced to publish from his manuscripts, carefully saved, many matters of interest will be disclosed.

The same Mr. Pinn, now a practicing lawyer in this city, when a boy was driven out of the public school near where he then lived, in this township, and which occurred long after the dates given above. "The world do move," whether the sun do or not. Until the adoption of the fifteenth amendment to the constitution of the United States, colored children could not be, nor were, admitted to the public schools in this city; now they are graduated in the same classes with white children. In writing the acts of the anti-slavery apostles in the Tuscarawas valley, Mr Folger promised your correspondent to give extracts from his correspondence, which he has carefully kept with a view to its publication, and which is interest QUINCY.

The Akron Beacon states that the miners in that vicinity are somewhat uncertain about accepting the five cents reduction, which was made according to mutual agreement, on the first of May. No such feeling prevails in this neighborhood, nor does it seem likely to crop out. The operators paid the advance in November without question, and the namers now accept the reduction as graciously. More harmonious relations never existed.

That is gold which is worth gold. Health is worth more than gold. Don't neglect a cough or cold and let it remain to mittat the lungs when a fifty cent buttle of Dr. Bigelow's Postive Cure will promptly and safely cure any perent cough, cold or throat or hing trouble. THE NEED OF A NEW SCHOOL BUILDING.

Figures Showing the Crewded Condition of all the Departments.

Talk of a large new school building has been heard for many months, and he engall who are familiar with the public schools, and the danger of overcrowding school rooms, its necessity is not denied. There are, however, quite a good many persons who probably rarely see more than the outside of the present walls, who, for various reasons, oppose the project now before the board of education. As the most incontrovertible argument, proving the absolute necessity of enlarged accommodations, the table below is given, showing the exact state of affairs, last February. The report was after thus his attention was turned to made by Superintendent Jones, and fire nished to the board. At that time an unusually large number of children were being kept at home by their parents, in account of the prevalence of some sort of sickness. It should also be taken into consideration that the average attendance does not represent what the average attendance would be were the sittings as numerous as they ought to be. Many people prefer to instruct to send them where they cannot receive heset apart one thousand dollars, the inthe attention they should, and where, as in one instance, they must occupy a basement room, entirely unfitted for shadow now falls across his grave. school purposes.

The lack of accommodation is most apparent, in the lower grades. In two rooms, the average attendance is actually in excess of the number of sittings; in six the enrollment is in excess of the number of sittings; and the total enrollment is within one hundred and thirty of the number of sittings. By March, when the superintendent made his quarterly report, the number enrolled had increased from 1463 to 1514. If this increase continues, what will be done with the children by next fall, with only 1,593 sittines?

Laying saide all questions of health and policy, it is evident that a large new school building must be erected this summer, and the sooner the board favorite clip will sink into utter disreadopts plans for doing it in a proper pute and disappear amid the trashy wools manner the better.

A WORTHY MAN. The Late John Christman, of Tuscarawas Township.

The following tribute to the memory of the late John Christman, by his pastor, is taken from the Christian World It reflects the opinion of those who knew him, and who feet that he has been made an unpleasantly conspicuous figure in a matter of domestic concern:

On the evening of April 8th, death bent his bow over against a shining mark, and one of nature's noblemen feel a-teep. In Tuscarawae Classis to lay member, pernaps was more adely and invorably known than bather John Christman. Mr. Christman was born | Sold everywhere. on the 17th of February, 1811, in Westmoreland county, Pennsylvania. When of proper age he was carefully indoctrinated in the creed of the Reformed church, by Dr. N. P. Hacke. Shortly the West. His first trip thither was made on foot, an achievement of which the writer often keard him speak. In 1833 he was joined in marriage to Miss Margaret Fisher, and two years later they removed to Ohio, and settled upon a farm, on which they lived through the sunshine and shadows of more than fifty years. Tuscarawas charge and St. John's congregation particularly will embalm his name in grateful recollec-He figured conspicuously in its history and was ever one of its most liberal supporters. Even death has not their children themselves rather than discontinued his ficancial support, since terest of which is to be used in maintaining the public worship of God in the humble sanctuary whose afternoon

In his home he was "given to hospitality." tented old man he seemed, plodding along life's weary way with an unfalter-ing rust in God In his dealings with men he was frank and positively upright. He disdained unfairness, hypocrisy and whatsoever leveth and maketh a lie. Though his look was stern, he had a tender and loving spirit. As springs of sweetest water are often found among rockiest places, so in his clay of sober cast there pulsed a noble heart, that distilled its influence like refreshing streams, among those who knew him best. He commanded the respect and confidence of the entire community.

THE WOOL BUYERS SPEAK, And Give Notice that Fleece Stuffers will be held Accountable.

The document below is an interesting and important one. To the uninitiated. it shows that frauds in wool are possible, as well as in food products, and to the offenders, the words give a warning. The dealers whose names are appended, are purchasers of a large proportion of We, the undersigned, dealers and wool

We feel that this should be done or this once which are thrown upon the market from other sources of supply. And we would further respectfully represent, To whom it may concern, that for the last several years we have been annoyed and caused to suffer loss in consequence of the disbonest methods practiced by some wool growers in doing up their flaeces. Fleeces all right to external appearance have been made the vehicles of deception and fraud by having inside parts of buck's fleeces, unwashed fleeces, wool pulled off of dead sheep tags, straw and dirt. This evil has become unendurable. We, therefore, take this occasion, a few weeks before shearing time, to notify all such as are fraudently inclined, that when such frauds are discovered, we will hold them strictly responsible under the law. We also advise that no more twine be used than is necessary to properly secure the

It will strike common mense people, for instance, that the enemies of the saloon, who reside in townships where there are no saloons, rather overdo it when they demand the right to vote for or against legal prohibition, under the crookedness in certain places, espec-Beatty law. The newspapers are getting tired of poking fun at the New York Mail and Express, and the public is discovering it to be a remarkably able and pure newspaper.

It is all over with Beriah Wilkins. Poor Beriah! Captain Jas. W. Owens, of Newark, was nominated for congress in the sixteenth distriet on the forty-first ballot.

The notion that the saloons were closed Sunday is all bosh. A woman went to the mayor Monday to denounce one dealer, and eager to have him prosecuted. He was not prosecuted.

The silence of the Canton press in regard to the aspirations of that rising young statesman, John E. Monnot, is painful. It is very rarely that the Canton papers thus neglect home talent.

Several papers compliment THE INDEPENDENT frequently by stealing much of their matter, without taking the trouble to more than slightly change the phraseology. A correction will have to be administered.

The saloons were not all closed last Sunday. Nobody expected that they would be. As the thing works now, the majority of the liquor dealers suffer an injustice. Many saloon keepers in good faith have decided to close up on Sunday, and it is unfair to them that a few of their wilful competitors should reap a harvest while they do nothing.

The protective tariff is almost as old as the city of Rome. It was Augustus who made Rome the grandest city of the ancient world, and it was Augustus who levied a tax, and a right heavy tax, too, on every commodity brought from afar that could be made by a Roman citizen. And we have not gotten so far beyond the ancients ideas of government as to drop the protective tariff theory.

MILITARY MATTERS.

COMPANY F TALKS UP A NEW ARMORY.

And is Talked to by Preminent Officors of the National Guard. [From Thursday's Daily.

The Wooster officers who had promised to assist in put ing Company F, 8th Regiment O. N. G., on its feet, were true to their word and came through a pelting rain, over muddy roads to get here. In the party that arrived last night were, Lieut. Col. C. V. Hard, who good organization too." is also inspector of arthories, Captain H N. Clemens, of the Wooster City Guards and editor of The Republican, Lieuten ant Cameron and Quartermaster Tag. gart. When they arrived they found at the Hotel Conrad, Col. C. M. Keyes, of the 16th regiment, who had happened into the city on business, and he was induced to make one of the party.

The Harmonia band, always thoughtful in enterprises of this sort, volunteered to furnish music, and by the time Dr. L. Henry Nold called the meeting to order, the People's hall was well filled.

Col. Hard explained that there would be no trouble about getting an armory. That the statutes did not make it optional with the county commissioners to build, but explicitly directs them to do so, upon notification, that a company of the national guard is in need of one. They are, moreover, compelled to build an armory entirely suitable, and one which will have to be acceptable to the armory inspector. As Col. Hard fills that office himself, it is certain that Company F will have a home of its own creditable to itself, and the city. Col Hard recommends that the company have its headquarters officially changed from Beach City to Massillon as soon as

Col. Keyes, of Sandusky, was next in troduced. He spoke of the benefits of a military training, which fitted every man to be a better citizen. He paid a high compliment to Col. Gyger, of the 8th Regiment, as a soldier, tactician and gentleman, and did not forget to say to parents that they need have no fear that the members of the company would not fall into good society. The officers are all gentlemen of the highest character, said he, and one of the first duties of a prompt soldier is to be himself a gentle-

Captain H. N. Clemens spoke of the faculties which were cultivated in national guardsmen, and of the pleasures of the life. He spoke well of Company D that once had its headquarters in Massillon under Captain Warthorst, and wished Company F all the success imag-

Lieutenant Cameron and Quartermaster Taggart each made a few remarks, all interesting and all to the same point. Dr. Nold then called upon those present to express themselves. Mr. J. H. Hurt asked what expenses attached to being a member of a militia organization. He was told that there were none necessary. The members are paid a dollar a day while in camp and two dollars a day while on duty. The State furnishes them at its own expense with a uniform, overcoat, blanket, gun, trappings, tent, blankets and transportation.

Junior Vice Commander R. A. Pinn spoke at some length, heartily encour aging the boys, and urging the citizens to give them the support.

Captain Zimmerman stated that Company F had now forty-one Massillon recruits and fifty-six members at Beac h

A point which was discussed was the duty of the people of the city to aid the company by purchasing honorary memberships. This is a method devised by the State government for the support of its military. Other cities aid independent troops, from whom they can derive no benefit under any circumstances. A company of the national guard consists of men sworn to assist in maintaining order in times of trouble, and though happily such times are infrequent, the Ohio National Guard has never flinched from its duty.

Dr. Nold spoke pertinently, and at his suggestion a vote of thanks was given to the visitors and to the Harmonia band. Messrs, Zimmerman, Bastz and Kellogg were appointed to procure a temporary

SIXTY HAPPY YEARS.

Wm. Stansbury and Wife Celebrate Their Sixtieth Wedding Anni-VOCULTY.

[From Wednesday's Daily]

A rare event was celebrated at the home of Wm. Stansbury, Tuscarawas township, on Tuesday, May 8th, the event being the celebration of the sixtieth anniversary of their marriage. About one hundred friends and relatives gathered at their home and spent the day. Mr. Stansbury is one of the oldest residents of Tuscarawas township, being in his eighty-second year. He moved to Tuscarawas township in the year 1828, his early days being spent in the town of Richmond, Jefferson county, O. Eleven children were born to them, nine of whom are still living, three in Ligonier, Ind., two in Canal Fulton, one in Canal Dover, and the other three reside near the old homestead. He and his wife have twenty-six grandchildren and twenty great-grandchildren. Mr. Stansbury is a man who has labored earnestly and zealously for the cause of education, being the chief instrument in establishing a school in this vicinity, and has been almost all his life a member of the M. E. churcn, in which he is an active and earnest worker.

After dinner remarks were made by Wm. Moffit, Wm. Maxhimer and Mrs. Stansbury. The guests departed wishing them peace on earth and a happy reunion after death. There were present from abroad: John and Josh Stansbury and wives, of Ligonier, Ind.; Mr and Mrs. Burchfield, of Cleveland; and Mr. Chas. Slusser, of Buffalo, N. Y.

MASSILLON RACING STOCK. To be Put in Training at Homewood

The Pittsburg Commercial Gazette has this to say:

J. S. Coxey, of Massillon, O., a well-known breeder of fine racing stock, was in the city last night arranging for the removal of a number of his trotters to the Homewood Park track next Tuesday. They will be put into training at once, and several of them entered for the July meeting there. The most promising animals in the stable are Extract, a brown mare eight years old, and Newton. a five year-old stallion with a record of 2:281. Extract is by Onward, dam Belmont, and her breeding justifies her owner's belief that she can go below 2:20. Newton has done an eighth of a mile at a two-minute gait, and will trot under 2:20 this season or Mr. Coxey will be greatly disappointed. The other horses are: Kentucky Chief a five-year-old stallion, by Onward (2:251). Seven of the latter's get were in the thirty class last year, four of them three-year-olds, one of which showed a mile in 2:193 Maggie S., record, 2:30 Kentucky Girl, by Fearnaught, jr. (2:26. dam Nutwood (2:183), Mollie Rodgers, by Tom Rodgers (2:20), dam, Kentucky

Extract, Kentucky Chief. Mollie Rodgers and Kentucky Girl are all green horses. Mr. Coxey's trainer is Matthew Laird, of Manefield. If the trotters make the right sort of a showing while training at Homewood, Mr. Coxey will send the best of them through the grand circuit.

Work on the southern extension of the Wheeling & Lake Erie railway has actnally commenced. A steam shovel passed through the city for some point below Bowerstown last week. In this connection, the following from the Scio Herald is interesting:

Mr. Paul has confidence in the build ing of the Wheeling & Lake Erie road by way of Hopedale. He says the new survey was a small game of bluff, and that the real and only trouble in the way is that the Wheeling & Lake Erie company has not yet been able to raise the money to make the eastern exten-

HE GOT BRUTALLY DRUNK

And Then Abused His | Wife.

Big Jake Axxe's wife called upon the mayor Monday. Big Jake Axxe is a monstrous broad shouldered individual who gets drunk, and may often be seen riding on a coal wagon. His wife told a pitiful tale—how Jake had abused her when in liquor, knocking her down, as well as using his tongue. She wanted advice, and so the mayor told her to go to the township clerk and have Jake's name placed upon the black list, and she did so. The saloonkeepers are allowed by law to have ten days in which to discover names put upon the black list, and then if they sell such an individual anything more and are found out, woe betide them!

Baron Von Schneider, the follower of all professions, the master of all sciences, the secret emissary of foreign potentates, the hero of many romances, "a gentleman and a scholar, and a man who has seen better days," eloquently exhorted ing the public to purchase his cure for rheumatism, on the street corners Saturday afternoon and evening.

When your bloom has fied away,

LOCKINGTON, O., Feb. 8, 1888-About seven or eight years ago my wife had symptoms of kidney and liver troubles and placed herself under the treatment of one of the best physicians of this community. She improved under his treatment, and in a short time was pronounced well. It was not long until all the old trouble re-appeared, and although temporary relief was again derived from the efforts of several other physicians, as well as the use of many kinds of medicines, my wife continued to grow worse until about a year ago she was in a sad condition. Her case was pronounced to be complicated kidney and liver disease, also chronic catarrh of the bladder. The doctors said she would not live two months longer. I heard so much of "Warner's Safe Cure" that I got some and persuaded my wife to try it. Now after taking nine bottles of "Warner's Safe Cure," two bottles of "Warner's Safe Nervine," ten bottles of "Warner's Safe Pills" and one bottle of "Warner's Safe Pills" a ner's Safe Rheumatic Cure," my wife has gained thirty-five pounds and is in better health than she has been for years.

LELAND STANKORD

An Interesting Talk with the Califernia Senator.

BUILDING THE CENTRAL PACIFIC.

The Worderful Snow Sheds-The Canadian Pacific and American Roads-The Senator Airs itis Views on the Relations of the Road with the Government-All Three Minute Horses Thoroughbreds. [Special Correspondence.]

WASHINGTON, May 3-I heard one of the most remarkable stories of American history last night It was told me by Senator Leland Stanford, and it was the story of the building of the Central Pacific railroad. I called upon Senator Stanford at his house on Farragut square, and we chatted together in his library. He is a tall, striking looking man with a big head, a rosy face, blue eyes and brown hair he is plain in his ways, and is ready with at answer to any estion propounded to held on almost my subject He is a man of these, and he is an especally interesting talker in the line of reminiscence I - whole life has been a continuous romen e in which hard work and success an ulure have gone hand in hand. He v a young lawyer in a small fown in consin, making bout $1.500 a year was the fire who burned up his o ad abrary drove him west ward. He went, entending to make some money and go back to Wisconsin to live, but the problems of the Pacific coast threw their erms about him, and he is grappling with them still. He was the first Republican governor of California, and was elected to that position in the fall of 1861. He was a strong friend of President Lincoln, and it was mainly through him that California was saved to the Union. he Union. ***
Assked him as to the building of the Central Pacide rallroad He said: "No one supposed the road could be built, and had we known the difficulties of its construction I doubt whether we would have attempted it. Even in California no one outside of the company would have anything to do with it. We tried to get subscriptions to the stock in San Francisco, but we could only sell ten shares of $1,000 each, and the man who bought these shares was a foreigner and a Frenchman A little stock was subscribed at Sacramento, but subscribers as a rule thought that they were putting their money into a hole and they doubted whether they would ever get it out again We had only enough money of our own to complete thirty-one miles of road, and the road building of today is nothing in comparison. In going over the Sierra Nevada mountains we built 150 miles of railroad which cost more than the building of the whole line between Chicago and the base of the Sierras, and for three winters we worked on the mountains with the snow falling to a depth of thirty-six and forty feet. I slept many a night in the snow during those days, and had to brush away the snow for a place to lav my blanket. All of our material had to come from the east, 17,000 miles by water, and we had then to haul it up the mountains through the snow To give you some idea of our work in the Sierra Nevadas, we used on the average 500 kegs of powder each day, and the snow sheds on these mountains cost us about $2,000,000. We had from 10,000 to 12,000 men working on these mountains, and we had to work under the snow. We ran tunnels into it to get at the rock to be excavated, and we had domes under the snow, and in these domes the masonry was laid and the stones were lowered through the snow drifts."

"Two million dollars seems a good deal to pay for show sheds," said I.

'Yes," replied Senator Stanford, "it does, but the ordinary man has no idea of what these snow sheds are. They are a mass of the heaviest timbers, braced and cross braced in every direction. We had to build some of them strong enough to support snow drifts of from 60 to 100 feet deep, and some had to be built against the mountain sides on a slope, so that the avalanches, with the trees and stones which accompany them, might sweep over the structure and not hurt the trains. Even now the snow drifts through these sheds and sometimes fills them, and when it does it often takes sixteen locomotives for a single snow plow in the work of clearing them. We had thirty-seven miles of these sheds, and it might have been better to have tunneled under the Sierra Nevadas below the snow belt, and I think such a tunnel will sometime be built. It would need to be about ten miles long and would cost about \$5,000,000 "It is hard to conceive today the cost of railroad building in the west in 1963. We hal to pay from \$200 to \$200 per ton for barley and oats, and hay cost us \$120 per ton. The first two locofunities we used cost as in in ight and actual value \$70,-000, and the first ten engines we bought cost us \$1 a 000. It cost \$2 000 in freight to carry the first locomotive around. Cape Horn to San Francisco, and our cars, were $\mathbf{L}(n^{k-1})(\mathbf{t}^{k}) = \mathbf{t}^{(k)}(\mathbf{t}^{(k)})$ then to pieces, brought ar no I Core Horn or across the isthmus, Impled at Sor France, carried by boat to bacronento and there put together. "When did you first begin the read?" "We began to consider the matter to 1860. Mr Judah, C. P. Huntington Mark Hopkins, Charles and Edward Crocker and myself then became interested in it. There had been talk of it before, and in hr without start has ever made 1863 a road to the Pacific was surveyed by [a mile in three $m_{\rm C}/m_{\rm GS}$ ect of congress, but nothing was done. We decided that the thing was practicable, and we had five surveys made across the Sierras to choose the best route. We took the Dutch Flat route, ascending the mountains from the west at a rise of nearly 7,000 feet in eighty three miles. We had to go almost 3,000 feet down along the sides of precipices to descend the solid walls of granite above Doner lake, and we thought that when we completed our road we would have a monopoly, and that our only competitors would be the or teams and the steamers. We organized our company with a capital of \$8,000,000 under the law of the state of California, and then got the legislature of Nevada to allow us to build across its desert. This was before congress had anything to do with it, and the first Pacific rathroad act was passed in 1862. The first work we did on the road was at Sacramento, on the 8th of January, 1863, and we completed it in 1869. We received, all told, just \$27,000,000 from the government in bonds, and there is no truth in these statements as to our getting \$100,000,000 and more out of the treasury. The \$27,000,000 in bonds we had to sell, so that we got only \$20,000, 000 for them, and the road, all told, cost about \$41,000,000. We were allowed to issue \$20,000,000 in bonds ourselves, and how it was possible for us to get \$100. 000,000 out of the \$40,000,000 we received is a problem for mathematicians. "And just here I want to say that it is impossible to estimate the money the United States has saved by this railroad It has never paid us as high rates for carrying the mails as it used to pay the stage lines. The government paid Wells. Fargo & Co \$1,750,000 every year for carrying the mails before this road was built. The mail in their case was not to exceed 1,000 pounds. As soon as our rail road was completed we had to construct a special car for mails, and we carried eighteen tons of mail matter and two messengers. The government controls this car, and we often have to put one or two extra cars on to carry the mails. In the time of the Wells and Fargo express the heavy mail went by Panama, and only the letter mail was carried by them. Now, we carry everything, and yet the government has never paid up to this date quite \$1,000,000 a year to both the Central Pacific and the Union Pacific for this service, whereas, as I have stated, it paid Wells & Fargo \$1,750, 000 a year We have thrown a number of states and territories open to settlement. and we have done an incalculable amount of good to the country It is not true that we have not done what we promised. The company has performed all its obligations. It has never made a cent at the expense of the government or of the people. We had to rush the building through at double cost because the gov ernment wanted the road, and it did not fulfill its obligations to us in surveying the land according to its contracts. As to the lands of the government, they have doubled in value. They were worth nothing at the time the railroad was built, and they are now worth a great deal We had to build cross roads in addition to the Central Pacific, and we have built altogether 6,000 miles of road

"How about other Pacific roads?"

"They all compete with us, and the Central Pacific railroad is today mainly a California road. For a time we had practically the whole business of the country and our only competition was the steam ship line by Panama. Now, there are the Southern Pacific, the Atlantic and Pacific. the Northern Pacific and the Canadian Pacific. The Canadian Pacific now takes freight in bond from San Francisco and carries it north, and ships it across the country to the eastern United States cities at less rates than we can offer according to the interstate commerce law A commission of the government went last year to Japan, and they took the Canadian Pacific and the Canadian ships It is true the company has grown in busi ness, but competition has grown faster than business All of these roads have their agents in San Francisco, and you will find them soliciting business in com petition with us.

"How about the Canadian Pacific?" "I don't know whether it will pay or not. They receive a great deal more from their government than we ever did. They got $60,000,000 and a big land grant, and they got it outright. The money we got from the government was only a loan. We had to pay a high interest, and were not as well off as most borrowers When we undertook to build the Central Pacific the government practically assured us that we would have no competition, and we understood that it would not aid other roads to compete with us. Had we known differently I doubt whether we could have put the road through. It is done, how ever, and the rails will stay and the train. will run whatever be the action of congress and the government in regard to us I think the Central Pacific road was well built, and we run through trains at a uni form rate of twenty miles an hour."

IN THE SPRING THE YOUNG GIRL'S FANCY TURNS TO BONNETS.

Olive Harper Talks About Headdrone the Latest Thing Out for the Pampered Pug Dog, and Various Other Matters for Women Renders.

[Special Oprzespondence.] NEW YORK, May 8.—There is such a bewildering array of beauties to see both in the stores and upon the street that the poor fashion writer must be pardoned for mixing things up a little. However virtuously I set to work to devote my observations to wraps, gowns or hosiery there are always new bonnets to be seen that instantly seduce my fancy, and I take note of those that particularly attract, and think, well, after all I may as well make this letter about bonnets. And then 1 come suddenly upon a sight of some other attraction, and I always end by having a perfect muddle of everything in my mind, and out of the fullness of the mind the pen writeth. Besides you pays your money and you takes your choice. Those who don't want to see a bonnet may be dying to know the newest style in harness for pug dogs, and in order that those may know the very "properest caper" in such things, is presented a lovely harness which has just been made for Mrs. Langtry's pug The harness is of rich blue velvet, heavily embroidered with

MRS LANGTRY'S PUG gold buttons wherever needed. The edge has a very handsome gold and silver braid. The buckles are of gold, with silver fret work, and the hock is of gold, with a silver chain There is no handle to lift him by, as Mrs Langtry never takes him out to walk, and therefore doesn't need such an aid to swing him over gutters It is a pity that there is not a fashion of having a strong belt or harness with a handle by which mothers and nurses could lift little children over gutters and up steps without dragging them by main force by one tiny, delicate little arm. But then fashion will wever permit that some mothers should bestow as tender care upon their little ones as they do on their dogs. If it were so these mothers could send word to the parents. Mrs. Langtry is having some very pretty gowns made at a leading house, and the most of them show a decided leaning toward the Directoire style, which her beautiful figure will set off finely. But there are two other dresses, one of which is worth mention. It is of peach blow colored linen lawn. with India silk figured drapery, and a pink surah corsage, with a wondered from whom it had been bought, as it has evidently been used in several successive generations, but as I never peddle ill natured gossip I won't repeat the information.

The skirt of this gown is made with the short apron drapery which Mrs. Langtry particularly affects, and knife pleats below it. Mrs. Langtry had her hair cut short a few months ago, and since then has been using various hair restorers with very indifferent success.

In one of the most renowned millinery houses I found some such "sweet loves" that I cannot help but show them, and below offer a puzzle for all mankind. What are they? Why, simply the foundation of a bonnet and an untrimmed hat. The thing, which resembles a kind of cross between an autumn leaf and a deformed clamshell, is the hat, and it only wants a ribbon, a bit of lace or a feather and a pretty face beneath it to become a thing of beauty. The bonnet, when adorned with about seven pounds of jet, feathers, volvet ribbon and flowers, will be a dream of beauty and worth its weight at hundred dollar greenbacks. If ever I get rich I mean to have a bonnet made out of shirred thousand dollar bills. with bows made of ten thousand dollar government four per cents, and then folks can tell at a glance how much my bonnet cost. Why, some women tell you they paid seventeen times as much as they did for their bonnets. There could be no deceiving in such an one as I propose. It wouldn't be a bit worse than to carry around with you a jewalar's guarantee, as one or two women I know do, when they wear their big diamonds, and that, too, resembles the wearing of a certain depth of erape folds or veils to measure the widow's grief with. It is the rule in the very best New York circles that the younger the widow the deeper the mourning must be and the more exact all the little accessories which really do heve a great influence in the proper district of grief. The hems to mourning veils are the same width, four inches on both ends, and nothing but the dullest of jet. The most lusterless goods and gloves are permis . The handkerchiefs are not only bear, is silered but have embroidery in black all over, and the newest fashion for interesting young luxuries of the age we live in.

widows is to wear black crape caps instead of the white, so long de rigueur.

After the modes for widows came those for hunting, not that anything particular is meant by the juxtaposition, though some may imagine that guns in the hands of the wives may result in the wearing of mourning garb a trifle later for the unlucky husbands. But it is really quite an idea among the advanced young ladies who have wearied of croquet and tennis, and who like to be considered brave and mannish, to at least make a pretense of hunting. Now that the laws make it proper to go gunning for sparrows it may be that they are trying to annihilate the poor little things. These young ladies are those who have money and leisure, and they like to have them selves talked about in the newspapers. These same Murray Hillers, as they are called, are those who on yachting excursions steer the boat or boss the engineer, or fish over the side with their mouths full of bait. These are the same that ride along the bridle paths in the park and wear dresses to a public ball that would shame a Fiji islander, and when they marry they have a grand blow out, six preachers, ten bridesmaids, and then they are never heard of again. They have had their day. But, after all their striving, they never really look like a man, act like one, nor do they ever vote, so what is the use of trying so very hard when they know they can't?

Now just contrast those foolish girls who want to be man like with the pretty female girl who is just dressed for a visit or a promenade! See the gentle, feminine air and the utter belief in the becomingness of her apparel, particularly her bonnet. Note the soft little curls and puffs and sashes, the dainty bracelets, the girlish attitude, and though we sadly admit that she eeems to be sampling a very suspicious looking mixture, she is in her simple, sweet, irreflective and graceful daintiness far more "killing" person than either of ber hunting sisters. With her and her kind everybody is content

A Disturbing Rumor.

There is a painful rumor to the effect that Hon. S. J. Randall, of Pennsylvania, proposes to visit St Louis during the sesion of the Democratic convention with a tariff plank all his own The attempt to transfer that peculiar timber from his private pocket to the national Democratic platform is very certain to mar the brothorly feeling and harmonious proceedings of that body As a matter of history, however, Brother Randall has always put in his best work at conventions, and the chance for a tariff double ender, with a Cleveland cast of countenance on the fore, and a Randall likeness to the aft, part of the Democratic craft, ready to force ahead or sail backward with equal facility, may be regarded as a probability of the Democratic future.—Boston Traveller

The Wills Bill and the Farmers. If there is one point more than another concerning which the free traders have professed concern. it is the unfortunate condition of the American farmer. They have represented him as staggering under the burdens of a tariff which protected all interests but his own, and greatly enhanced for him all the expenses of living, nd they have exhausted the resources of ueir legic and invention in their en leavors to arouse the agricultural against the manufacturing interests In view of squarely One is this touching solicitude of the free traders 8 inches from the for the farmers, it is surprising to observe bottom to receive how severely the provisions of the Mills the tail piece B. tariff bill bear upon the tillers of the ould be soil Potatoes are an important crop

Moreover, as we have already shown, by an ingenious but hardly accidental omis sion of qualifying words which limited the list in the present tariff, the Mills tariff reformers open the way to the free importation of wheat, corn, oats, barley and all other grains The official text of the bili enumerates among other articles on the free list these was carried to his home last night, and may recover. His condition is due to an unforeseen and almost remarkable accident at Warwick's switch, at the east end of Tremout street, last night. A gang of men were at work on the south side of the road when, about quitting time, the bank on one side of the cut caved in and covered Joseph Hanks and Jacob Ohmez, both of the fourth ward.

CRUSHED AND CUT.

A MASS OF EARTH CAVES IN

The strange feature is that so little earth, for there were only a few wheelbarrow loads of it, should do such damage. The two men were removed as quickly as possible and taken home Ohmez is not seriously hurt, and he will soon be out. He is bruised, but that is all. Hanks is in a bad way. There must have been many sharp stones in the mass, or he could not have been so mounted. The calf of his right leg is ripped open, almost to the bone, from the ankle to the knee. On the tibia of the left leg there is a cut six inches long. Another gash on the head is five inchelong. If the internal injuries are not to severe, and it is not known yet, he may recover. The contractor has been extremely careful, and this accident can scarcely be laid at anybody's
